THE PRODUCTS THAT CAN BRING YOU HANDSOME PROFITS

By Jeff N Marquis and Kerry J Harrison

We know: You are just so tired of hearing about what types of products you can sell in order to make more profits. Yes, it is becoming a very tiring thing for all of us but before you decide to get rid of this newsletter we want to pass on some very valuable information to you. You have nothing to lose because our information is free and we are not asking you to invest any money in anything or any crazy venture.

Our information is reliable and authentic and it is based on the real facts of life. It is based on the demands of those very hidden and yet untapped markets that we have been telling you about. These markets are very real, are growing rapidly and will continue to grow for a very long time, and if we don't start to produce and sell the products that these markets are craving for then pretty soon we are going to have huge problems on our hands.

This problem is so real that the United States Government has started to take action and other Governments around the world are following suit. Do you know what the American Government has started to do in order to address the problems of supplying these untapped markets with the products that they are rapidly increasing their demands for? They have passed legislation to force companies to produce these products, and they are spending billions of dollars to pay for these products to be stock piled.

The time has come for you to start thinking about how you can take advantage of a very real situation. It may interest you to know that one of these markets spent an estimated 4.3 billion dollars on some of these products in 2002 and this figure is expected to increase dramatically for the foreseeable future. This figure applies only to the United States and we ask you to keep in mind that this market does not have borders because it exists worldwide. Just think what the figures could be for the entire world!

Now is the time for you to learn about these products and you are going to be quite surprised when we give you some hints. First we have access technology products and these would include hardware and software products that our special needs persons, our seniors, and our aging baby boomers are demanding.

Next we have those products that persons need to have because it makes things more convenient for them. Products like talking books which some one can listen to while they do other things like drive their cars to and from work or while they eat a hurried meal or relax on the beach. Then we have an ever increasing demand for garden products that more and more consumers are demanding because they are spending more time in their gardens. These are the growing number of our baby boomers and our seniors.

Then we are experiencing a spiral in demand for golf, tennis, fishing, boating, and similar types of products and again these demands are being driven by our untapped markets.

Now we are going to leave it to you to think about the products that our over 888 million Internet users are demanding and don't forget that it is estimated by the end of 2005 this market is expected to reach one billion consumers. We are also going to remind you about the products that over 171 million global diabetics are desperately seeking and the American government, the United Nations, the World Health Organization and businesses of all sizes are frantically scrambling to establish a supply of these products.

We'll give you one final tip and that is: When you sell these types of products you have to think of it as selling products that are not only being demanded by these markets, but they are also being demanded by consumers from many other markets. It is what we call "the multi purpose" concept. Just think of the Ziploc bag that will benefit the kid who wants to carry around his markers, the lady who wants to carry around her cosmetics, and the family who store their food in the freezer.

You can learn more about the dimensions of these very lucrative and untapped markets, how to stay ahead of your competition by discovering these markets before they do, how to become indispensable experts who will be paid big dollars for their expertise, and much more by purchasing a copy of the book "Untapped Wealth Discovered" (the safest and richest untapped markets of the 21st century)" written by us.
