THESE CAREERS CAN BRING YOU FINANCIAL SECURITY

By Jeff N Marquis and Kerry J Harrison

Are you having difficulty deciding what career you should follow after you leave college or university? Or are you still trying to make up your mind about what course of studies you should be following as you get ready to enter college or university? Even more, are you unsure as to what type of career you should be seeking now that you have been down sized after so many years with your employer? Or maybe, you are looking for a second career because you are growing tired of your present job?

We are not going to tell you that there is a magical solution out there and that there are careers which will guarantee you six and seven figure incomes. What we will tell you is that based on the seismic shifts in our society, there are certain career paths that will stand more of an even chance of bringing you financial security.

There are certain untapped and very lucrative markets out there that are rapidly increasing their demands for various types of products and services which at present are very scarce resources to them. These markets are very financially influential and such is their influence that the United States Government along with many other Governments such as Britain, Australia, New Zealand, and Canada just to name a few, are passing legislation to force companies to provide these products and services. The Americans have imposed very stiff penalties on any company who fails to adhere to this piece of legislation.

What's so important about these markets? They exist worldwide, are growing at scorching rates, and are expected to be around for way past our lifetime. As of 2002 one of these was made up of 750 million persons and 55 million of them were living in the United States. By the year 2010 60% of our North American population will be made up of one of these markets and it is estimated that they will own about 70% of our banking assets. Based on this we can look forward to much bigger stats for the world as a whole.

There are other markets to consider: the estimated one billion Internet users by the end of 2005, the one billion adolescents worldwide as of 2003, and the 31 million Spanish-speaking Americans as of 2003 whose first language is not English. Added to this are the more than 50% of those global users whose first language is not English.

Now, you don't have to think too hard in order to determine what types of careers are going to bring you more income. Let us give you a head start and we are doing this all for free. We are not going to give you a complete list but we will list some careers and show you which market would be best suited to this type of career.

The medical field

First we have a need for Ophthalmologists who will be needed more and more to treat our aging population as they develop various eye diseases and experience loss of vision due to afflictions that accompany the aging process. Then we will need specialists to deal with afflictions such as Diabetes, heart conditions, and similar types of afflictions that normally accompany the aging process. We would also need more and more massage therapists and physeo therapists to take care of the needs of our seniors and aging baby boomers. Then it would naturally follow that we would also need more nurses as well as other skills that relate to the medical field.

Teachers

We will need teachers who can teach the types of courses that our untapped markets are looking for. We will need teachers to teach English language skills to our rapidly growing immigrant population, teachers to teach computer courses to our seniors and to our baby boomers who are looking to expand their knowledge of technology, and teachers to teach special courses to our rapidly increasing special needs population. We will also need course developers to design these courses and to design distance education courses for our hundreds of millions of those Internet users who are seeking online courses from the comfort of their homes.

Financial planners

We will also need to call upon the skills of those financial planners who will be needed to help our seniors and aging baby boomers as they seek to make wise investments with their well earned incomes. These financial planners would need to be very knowledgeable about our stock markets, our banking systems, and our tax systems.

Other very useful careers

Our final suggestions are that we will need to build a huge and dynamic work force of electronic technicians, home renovation, home service, and home care workers, accountants, website developers who are very knowledgeable about the meaning of the term "accessibility", specialty chefs, fitness instructors, translators, transcribers and virtual assistants, health care professionals, and beauty care professionals.

We have given you a lot to think about and we are sure that you can add to this list. Now it's time for you to start acting.
